

Monthly review

In June, the Italian equity market reached new year-to-date highs, supported by progress in negotiations between the United States and Iran, which led to a significant retracement in oil prices. However, considerable uncertainty remains regarding the final outcome, particularly with respect to the management of the Strait of Hormuz. The best-performing sectors were financials, banks and insurance companies, as well as technology, which continues to benefit from investment in artificial intelligence. By contrast, in addition to oil-related stocks, the automotive sector and consumer-related names struggled. Banks were supported by the offer from Intesa and Unipol on Montepaschi, which reignited the consolidation process. The offer by Unicredit on Commerzbank is also nearing completion and should result in control of the German bank, albeit without moving significantly beyond the 50% threshold. At sector level, we reduced utilities while maintaining positions in banks and insurance companies, ahead of what we expect to be a solid reporting season. Among our preferred stocks are Intesa and Unipol. We reduced the invested portion to 97% and increased the allocation to mid and small caps to around 60%. In particular, we bought Ariston, MutuiOnline and Intercos, and sold Acea and Banca Ifis. The most significant positions among small caps are Sol, Danieli risp, Mondadori and Philogen. Finally, we participated in the placement of Alia Mentis, a very interesting industrial small cap. In this context, the dynamic hedging strategy did not generate any hedging signals and resulted in full market exposure throughout the month.
